What to Expect

Like so much of 2020, staffing and personnel decisions, both this year and for the foreseeable future, will be challenging and they will likely require schools to rethink what have been traditional processes. Changes in instructional platforms, COVID-19 orders and guidance, and potential budget impacts all mean modified program needs, staffing shortages (or excesses), ongoing health and safety concerns, accommodation requests, and remote work, along with general anxiety and frustration, will drive and complicate school personnel decisions. In this virtual full-day conference, experienced school law attorneys will focus on HR areas including:

- Gathering and presenting evidence to support contract action;
- Preparing for a reduction in force;
- Navigating employee leave issues;
- Managing requests for accommodations during and after the pandemic.

This training is ideal for both central office and campus administrators.
