“I’m committed to partnering with clients to find solutions for the challenges they face so that they can focus on what matters the most – empowering the next generation through education.”

A fifth generation Texan, born and raised in Southeast Texas, Stacy Tuer Castillo is a proud product of Texas public schools. She has been practicing law since 1996 and is dedicated to assisting school districts accomplish their educational mission. She represents school districts in all areas of school law, including construction, real estate and transactional matters, public finance, First Amendment and other constitutional issues, employment, and school law and special education litigation. She has successfully represented school districts in all levels of federal and state court litigation, appellate matters, and administrative proceedings.

During law school, Stacy was a judicial intern for Justice Raúl Gonzalez of the Texas Supreme Court. Following graduation from law school, she worked as a briefing attorney to Justice Paul Green at the Fourth Court of Appeals in San Antonio.

Stacy has authored numerous articles and has been a speaker on a wide range of school law topics, including religion in schools, Constitutional issues, bond construction work, sexual harassment, the Open Meetings and Public Information Acts, and school employment issues.
