"Driven by a passion for public service, I chose school law because it allows me to support clients who are dedicated to improving the lives of future generations. It's a privilege to help school districts navigate complex legal challenges so they can stay focused on their mission."

Briah earned her law degree from the University of Maryland Francis King Carey School of Law. There, she served as the Executive Articles Editor for the Journal of Business and Technology Law and as the Secretary for the Black Law Students Association. Briah also acted as a student attorney in the Youth, Education, & Justice Clinic where she handled matters involving student discipline proceedings.

Briah attended Pennsylvania State University for undergraduate studies and earned a Bachelor of Arts Degree in Psychology and Criminology.

Prior to joining Walsh Gallegos, Briah represented Maryland school systems in litigation, student issues, and employment personnel matters.
