“I’m so pleased to be able to offer unique insight and perspective - not only as a school lawyer, but as a former special education teacher and administrator - to bear in helping our schools.”

Jennifer Carroll has extensive background in education, from the classroom to the district administration office. Her wealth and variety of experience make her an excellent resource for school personnel.

Jennifer focuses her legal practice on representing school districts in the area of special education and Section 504. She often provides training to school personnel on a variety of topics related to special Education and Section 504.

Prior to practicing law, Jennifer spent twenty years in Texas public schools serving as a special education teacher, behavior interventionist, and administrator. In addition to being a lawyer, she is also certified as a special education teacher, educational diagnostician, and principal.

Prior to law school, Jennifer attended the University of North Texas, where she earned a Master of Education degree, and Texas Wesleyan University where she earned her Bachelor’s degree.
