“I am a fierce advocate for school districts. When I can break down complex issues and help schools move towards productive solutions, everyone wins.”

Bridget R. Robinson supports Texas public schools with a legal practice emphasizing employment and student law, governance, and litigation.

Bridget has successfully represented school districts and private employers against a broad range of claims including employment discrimination, harassment, retaliation, wage and benefits disputes, civil rights violations, disability claims, employee leave disputes, breach of contract, and wrongful termination.

Following graduation from law school, Bridget served as a briefing attorney for the Second District Court of Appeals in Fort Worth, Texas. Subsequently, she accepted an appointment as an Assistant Attorney General for the State of Texas.
